About all that will be left of the Nash code will be an unpleasant memory when the legislators get through with it.

Pennsylvania can find plenty of authority to shoot down miners, but she has no laws to punish the coal trust. She is a charming Republican state.

PUBLICITY.

Mr. Roosevelt's first remedy for the trust evil is publicity and, if his remarks are correctly interpreted, he seems to consider a constitutional amendment necessary to that end.

Did it ever occur to him that most of the monopoly combines are essentially creatures of congress may at any time require of them the fullest publicity on pain of deprivation by congress of the monopoly privileges which it has given them?

If congress arms some people with laws which enable them to collect tribute from all the rest it surely has a right to know how much spoil is realized—and so have the victims.

THE BOY GIANT SAVES THE BABY CROWS

Copyright, 1900, by Caroline Wetherell

On the top of a cottonwood tree
There dwelt once a crow, Jimmy C.
His family of six
In a nest made of sticks
Were happy and cozy and free.

In a neat little house down the hill
There lived a boy—Birdsnesting Bill.
He climbed that tall tree
And frightened Jim C.
And threatened the children to kill.

The kindly young giant, Ah Grim,
And Jack of the Beanstalk with him,
Caught Bill at the nest.
His jacket they dressed
And hung him up on the moon's rim.

The Game of Homonyms.

In this game two persons are sent from the room, and they select two words which are pronounced alike, but have different meanings, such as bear, bare, sea, see, etc. Suppose they settle upon the words bear and bare. Then they re enter the room and one says, thinking of bear, "it has a thick coat." The other says, thinking of bare, "it has no coat at all." Then they continue to contradict each other, each telling the truth about his own word, until the players guess what the word is. The first one guessing must choose his partner and leave the room to think up another homonym, and the game is repeated till the children want to play something else.

A Mother's Love.

There is an old legend that at creation's dawn an angel came down to earth seeking something to take back with it to heaven. It returned with a bouquet of flowers, a baby's smile and a mother's love. When it reached again the gates of paradise, the flowers had withered, the baby's smile had vanished, but the mother's love was found to be as pure and eternal as the waters that flowed by the heavenly throne, and all the angels exclaimed, "There is nothing on earth pure enough for heaven but a mother's love."—Exchange.

A Dry Land Yacht.

A yacht which sails on dry land is the novelty which may be seen on the great trackless plains of the Mojave desert, near Death valley. One day two young miners were trudging their weary way over the plain when a gust of wind struck them and blew away their hats. One of them suggested that if they had a wagon with sails on it they might overtake their hats or at least be able to travel faster than they could walk. Accordingly they set to work and built a low truck, on which they mounted two sails. Between their camp and their mine lay the smooth, hard surface of the plain, formerly the bottom of a lake, and they were soon able to manage their wheeled yacht so that they could make the trip in a few minutes. It is said that in favorable winds they can travel at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

Arithmetic In Japan.

Do you know that the little ones of Japan, just as you do, become interested in arithmetic by seeing and feeling what a pretty thing a cone, a sphere or cylinder is when cut out of wood with a lathe. They also make outlines of solid figures out of straw, with green peas to hold the joints together, and the blind children have flat blocks with the Japanese letters raised upon them.

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Newark Citiens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Newark people should be evidence beyond dispute for every Newark reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbor cheerfully given by them will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mrs. B. Donahue, 216 North Fifth street, says: "For quite a long time my kidneys were very much affected, and I had a heavy feeling across the lower part of my abdomen, which made me miserable. Pain across the small of my back was often so acute that I was hardly able to move around and a distressing and annoying urinary weakness accompanied it. A friend of mine, who, by using Doan's Kidney Pills had been cured of backache, advised me to try them: took the advice and obtained a box at Crayton's drug store First the kidneys were stimulated to a healthy and natural action, then the backache and general feeling of depression left me."

NEW UNITED STATES MAPS.

Interesting and Useful Features In Ones Being Made.

The director of the United States geological survey says that the topographic branch this summer has seventy surveying parties in the field. These parties are conducting surveys and securing the necessary data for maps of different sections of thirty-three states and territories, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune. When at the close of the field season this material is worked up and placed in the hands of the printer, it will be embodied in about a hundred topographic maps, which will represent approximately 32,000 square miles of country, an area nearly as large as that of New England without the state of Maine. The surveys are made with great care, and the resulting maps are models of the cartographer's art in beauty of finish and precision and accuracy of detail.

One of the interesting and useful features of these maps is their expression of the relief or contour of the surface. To accomplish this lines are drawn through points of equal elevation at regular intervals of ten, twenty, fifty or a hundred feet, according as the country is flat or rugged, and from these lines, known as "contours," it is possible, by noting whether they lie near together or distant on the map, to read clearly the shapes and slopes of the hills, the extent of the valleys and their altitudes above sea level. This feature greatly adds to their value for engineers, tourists and others, to whom an accurate knowledge of the topography is of importance.

For the convenience of those desiring detailed information regarding its maps the geological survey distributes on application small index sheets or folders for the different states, which show by a system of small rectangles stamped on a key map the exact territory surveyed and mapped in each and also the scale of miles, the names, areas and other facts of interest connected with the published maps.

Novel Way to Pay Debts.

Jerry Logan, the aged negro janitor of the state supreme court at Knoxville, Tenn., has sold himself to Gerald Stuart, clerk of the court, for $1,000, says the Chicago Record-Herald. For this sum he agrees in a written contract to serve and obey Stuart as his legal master from now until the time of his death. Logan has lately been worried by debts, which he will pay now from the sum to be paid him for his liberty. He is an ex-slave, born of slave parents sixty years ago, and has many white friends of the old regime.

AMERICAN PLACE NAMES

New Data on Their Origin and Meaning.

WORK OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Henry Gannett, Geographer, Has Collected Much Interesting and Valuable Information—Chicago Is Given as Derived From an Indian Word Meaning Skunk or Wild Onion.

In bulletin 197, series F, geography 32 of the United States geological survey, now in press, Mr. Henry Gannett, geographer, gives the origin of some 10,000 place names in the United States, says the Washington Post. "These," he says in his letter of transmittal, "have been compiled from various sources, printed and manuscript. The publication is recommended not only for purposes of information, but to induce criticism and additions, with a view of obtaining in the future all possible information on this subject."

The work should be of considerable interest as embodying much local and general history. During the compilation of the bulletin a large correspondence was carried on with state and local historical societies, state, county and township officers and individuals in all parts of the country. Much valuable material was collected in this way which otherwise would have been unavailable. A few specimens will indicate the scope of the work:

"Alabama.—State of the Union and a river of that state, named from an Indian tribe. There are several explanations of the meaning of the word. Gatchet gives 'burnt clearing.' Others say it means 'here we rest.' Haines in his American Indian gives 'thicket clearers.'"

"Bailey.—County in Texas, named for one of the men who fell at the Alamo March 6, 1836. His first name is worn away on the stone monument, which is the only record of him."

"Chicago.—City and river in Illinois. The origin of the word is from the Indian, being a derivation by elision and French annotation from the word Chi-Kang-ong. Colonel Samuel A. Starrow used the name in a letter to General Jacob Brown in 1816 as follows: 'The river Chicago (or i... VALUE OF OIL AS FUEL.

Employed on Ocean Liner, It Gave Complete Satisfaction.

The Oceanic Steamship company's oil burning liner Mariposa arrived at San Francisco the other day from Tahiti a day before she was expected, says the New York Herald. The record of her voyage is a tribute to the wisdom of the step taken in deposing old King Coal and substituting liquid fuel as food for her furnaces.

She reached port with her paint work fresh and her decks as clean as those of a well scrubbed yacht. Officers and crew were jubilant over the success of the new fuel. Lieutenant W. P. Wenchell of the United States navy, who is chief engineer of the cruiser Boston and who was detailed by the navy department to accompany the Mariposa on her first voyage as an oil burner, expresses himself as delighted with the liner's behavior.

"I will make my report to the navy department and of course cannot go into details in regard to this matter for publication," he said. "I can say this much, however, and I speak from experience gained through careful observation throughout the voyage—that fuel oil, so far as the Mariposa is concerned, is a complete success. The results obtained on this voyage will be still further improved upon as the engineers become better accustomed to the new conditions."

The Mariposa used only two boilers throughout the voyage, and there was never a hitch from start to finish. The passengers expressed themselves as delighted with a state of affairs which made possible rapid transportation and an absence of dirt and smoke. From the oil furnaces there is no odor, and the cleanliness exists to the utmost depths of the big liner. Passengers were able to visit the ship's engine room and fireroom without risk of having their garments soiled or of being subjected to stifling heat.

The voyage of the Mariposa was watched with interest by the entire piping world, and its success, it is believed, will mean the conversion to oil burners of a large number of vessels and the abandonment of coal as fuel by the mercantile marine. G. S. Grundell, one of the patentees of the oil burning system used on the Mariposa, made the trip to Tahiti and back for the purpose of watching the system in ...ctical operation. His verdict is Gosnell Family Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Gosnell-Preston families was held in Mrs. Allie Barrick's grove, west of Sylvania, on last Saturday. Several deaths in the family and neighborhood prevented the attendance from reaching the usual number, yet the crowd was large and congenial, and included many friends, as well as members of the immediate families.

Mr. Arthur E. Toothaker presiding, the following brief program was rendered after dinner:

National hymn by the congregation, led by Rev. Wm. Benzing, Chatham.

Address, Walter A. Irvine.

Address, Rev. Wm. Benzing.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Jesse Gosnell. Secretary, Semers Gosnell; Treasurer, Lorenzo D. Gosnell.

The last Saurday in July was fixed as the date of the next meeting, and a cordial invitation to meet with us next year was extended to all relatives and friends of the families. It is hoped that all interested will unite to make the coming reunion the largest and most interesting in the history of the families, and that no friend or relative who can attend will fail to be on hand early in the day.

MISS BOWMAN FELL, STRIKING HER HEAD.

For Several Hours the Young Woman Was Unconscious, But Is Now on the Road to Recovery.

Miss Nellie Bowman, one of J. J. Carroll's popular clerks, met with a serious accident about 10:30 o'clock on Sunday morning.

She was on a street car, and between Arch and Vine streets, on East Main, her hat blew off. The conductor signaled to stop the car, but before the motorman could do so, Miss Bowman got on the running board. She either lost her balance and fell, or stepped off the car, striking on her head. Te conductor and Engineer B. E. Parish carried the injured woman into the house of Thomas Bucy and sent for Dr. D. M. Smith.

Miss Bowman was unconscious, in which condition she remained until 7 o'clock Sunday evening. A gash was cut in the scalp, which required a number of stitches, and the young woman suffered severe bruises and nervous shock.

Her condition is now much improved.

THE GAME OF WAR

Between the Army and Navy on New England Coast.

Points Gained by the Navy, Which is the "Enemy" in Maneuvers, But Failed to Enter New York Harbor---Vessels Sunk.

Fisher's Island, N. Y., Sept. 2— Ft. Wright at 10:20 o'clock Monday night exchanged shots with a battleship of the Indiana type as she passed going toward Ft. Terry on the Long Island side. Afterward the guns of Ft. Terry were heard, apparently trained on the battleship. A message was received a short time ago from the signal station at Ft. Mansfield announcing that the whole fleet was coming this way.

An officer in the fort here is authority for the statement that the Mayflower was blown up, theoretically, by a submarine mine, while attempting to force an entrance at Ft. Gut.

BEACON HILL
Was Captured by the Enemy After a Bombardment.

Block Island, D. I., Sept. 2—The Beacon Hill Signal and wireless telegraph station established by the army in connection with the extensive war maneuvers was captured by the fleet representing the enemy under the command of Rear Admiral Higginson just after 6 o'clock Monday morning. The station was abandoned after a bombardment of two hours and a quarter by the battleships, and the guard escaped before a superior force of marines which had landed under cover of the fire from the vessels at Great Salt Pond Harbor. Eight hundred marines are now holding the town and guarding the approaches, while the fleet is anchored off shore.

It was scarcely midnight when the patrol of the Block Island Life Saving Station discovered the fleet off the eastern side of the island. The signal station at once was warned and the men considered an attack imminent. They had four hours leeway. At 4:15 the battleship ran in and opened fire on the island. The range raked the Great Salt Pond and the Beacon Hill Station. The reverberation shook the island to its base. The firing was continued until 6:30. when a collier and a dispatch boat entered the harbor and landed a force of men. Before the attack of this detachment, having been reduced ty the previous bombardment, the men at the station made their escape. The landing force of 800 was divided and squads were stationed on each side of the breakwater and at other points along the shore, while an ample force was sent to occupy the Beacon Hill Signal Station. As the fleet lay off shore 17 vessels could be counted, including colliers.

New London, Conn., Sept. 2—The attempt of the fleet to force a passage into Long Island Sound and capture New York has signally failed. The ships under command of Admiral Higginson, engaged the fire of Forts Micie, Wright and Terry last night and again this morning. While reports from post commanders to army headquarters are extremely meagre this morning it is known positively that the Massachusetts and Brooklyn were destroyed and sunk. The fire of the defense was concentrated upon these vessels and they were theoretically riddled with the heavy shot. Reports from Little Gull this morning state that several of the enemy's ships ran into the submarine mines while attempting to escape today. The Alabama, Puritan and another vessel are known to have run into the mines and have been destroyed.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF

Collection Cost is Hardly Paid by the Amount of Receipts For Duties.

Washington, Sept. 2—Surprising results are reflected in the compilation of tariff returns on goods imported from the Philippine islands during the first five months of the operation of the Philippine tariff act, approved on March 8 last.

Under that act 75 per cent of the Dingley rates were to be collected on Philippine imports into the United States, and this was to be held as a trust found in the United States treasury.

Although when the act was passed it was realized that the collection of any duties of this kind would be restrictive of trade, it was argued that, as the returns would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $500,000 per annum that consideration would outweigh the drawbacks of maintaining a tariff system against the Philippines. The returns just published in the treasury show that the total receipts for the five months of March, April, May, June and July, were but $11,194, a sum so small in the opinion of the officials as to scarcely meet the cost of collection. Moreover, the returns by months do not show any increase, but rather a decrease in the collections. These facts will be brought to the attention of Congress at its next session.

ELEVEN OFFICERS SHOT

By a Negro, Who for Four Hours Kept One Hundred Policemen at Bay.

New York, Sept. 2—Jerry Hunter, the negro who shot a number of policemen and set fire to his house in Queensborough last night, in an effort to escape arrest, was captuured early today and locked up in Astoria jail.

In the fight between Hunter and those who tried to arrest him, eleven policemen, three citizens and Hunter's wife, were wounded. The police wanted Hunter because he shot at a man who was digging for fish bait in Hunter's yard.

A New Fire Pump.

A new fire pump has been invented by Robert Lefebre, captain of the Rouen (France), fire department, says the Washington Post. This pump is so small that a light two wheel cart with one horse is sufficient to transport it. It is driven by electricity, and the dynamo is operated by current from the street car or electric light wires, which are tapped by means of a hooked pole or rod. This pump, which is quite a small one, made principally for experimental purposes, furnishes a pressure capable of throwing a jet of water to a height of over 100 feet. It has the advantage of being placed quickly in action wherever there is electrical current available. At a recent test three minutes were required to put the pump in working operation, whereas heretofore for the steam pump giving about the same flow of water fourteen minutes were required.

The use of Paine's Celery Compound is a necessity for all who seek the path of health and long years. Victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney disease, liver trouble, dyspepsia, nervousness, and blood diseases quickly and surely find new life, vigor and strength in Dr. Phelps' medical prescription—Paine's Celery Compound. It builds up the system, purifies the blood, braces the nerves, and regulates digestion as no other medicine can do. Mr. John C. Rowan, 137 E. Winifred street, St. Paul, Minn., says:

"Some six years ago I suffered with rheumatism in my knees so painful I could get no relief, and I had to rub them for a moment's ease. Paine's Celery Compound cured me and eradicated the disease from my system. I had also been afflicted with kidney disease as most railroad men are, and I had catarrh so bad that my head ached and my eyes were inflamed with continual pain, and I could retain nothing but liquid food on my stomach. Today, thanks to Paine's Celery Compound, I think I am as healthy as any man that stands on the globe."

Heat Exhaustion.

Thousands of people, every summer, get into a condition so unhealthy that any over-exertion on a hot day brings on faintness, and, in some cases, absolute collapse. BLOOD WINE immediately relieves such a condition, tones up the whole system, and, by aiding the digestion, builds up a strength capable of resisting heat. INSTANTLY

IS BRAKEMAN BRILL KILLED AT BLACK HAND.

Struck by Passenger Train and Badly Mangled—Burial Takes Place at Salesville, Ohio.

Mr. J. R. Brill, a well known B. & O. freight brakeman, was instantly killed at Black Hand at 1.30 o'clock this morning by being struck by passenger train 106.

The unfortunate man was one of Conductor Donavin's freight crew, and was coming west on the second section of No. 25. Upon arriving at Black Hand Conductor Donavin sent Mr. Brill ahead to flag Passenger train 106. Some little time elapsed before the train arrived, and it is supposed that Brill sat down on the track and was dozing when the passenger train rounded the curve and struck him. The engineer of the passenger train realized that he had struck a man as soon as it occurred and quickly stopped his train. The crew of No. 25 was notified, and the remains were brought to this city and turned over to Undertakers Bowers & Bradley, who prepared them for interment. They were taken to the home of the parents of the deceased at Salesville, Ohio, on 104 today.

Mr. Brill boarded at the home of Mr. Elias Dew, in the East End, and was quite well known in Newark.

The man was horribly mangled and the entire train passed over his body. It is impossible to tell exactly how the accident occurred, but the theory that he was sleeping seems to be the most plausible.

LABOR DAY OF 1902.

given employment to something over 16,600 additional men. With an eight hour day, therefore, in that trade alone over 33,000 idle men would be put to work, and on the total number of wage earners the increase would be enormous.

This, therefore, is the logic of the eight hour movement, and it may be analyzed as follows: Reduction of hours means employment of more men; increase of employed workmen means increase of consumption; increased consumption means increased demand; increased demand means larger business and increased profits; increased business means a larger field of employment and a greater demand for workmen; the greater the demand for workmen and the fewer men there are idle, the less competition will there be for places and the easier will it be to get an increase of wages, and higher wages brings a still further increase of consumption, for it is an unquestioned fact that the more money the workingmen have the more they will spend. It is this increased consumption that makes up and more than compensates the employer for the seeming loss due to the reduction of hours and enables him to sell his product to and in competition with the low wage countries of Europe.

If, therefore, organized labor aimed at nothing beyond the advancement of the eight hour movement it would still be engaged in an effort worthy the support of all right thinking people; but when we consider its broad humanity, the protection it is striving to give the weak and helpless, the spirit of fraternity and brotherly kindness which it encourages among all classes of workers and the justice on which its principles and demands are based, we can well understand why the late William Gladstone characterized trades unions as the "bulwark of modern democracy."

How any workingman can be opposed to organization it is impossible for me to understand. Even if he is utterly selfish and cares nothing for the welfare or happiness of his fellow-men, he must acknowledge that his own prosperity is enhanced and protected by the trades union. Though he be a non-union man and may never have given one cent in support of a labor [illegible]anization, the struggles and sacri[illegible] of the union are keeping up the [illegible]dard of wages and he is reaping [illegible]enefit; the safeguards to life and [illegible]h by which he, while at work, is [illegible]tected, have been secured through [illegible]da efforts of the union, and the enact[illegible]who of every law passed in the inter[illegible] of the working classes has been [illegible]ght about through the tireless en[illegible] of organized labor. When he [illegible]s of all this, it seems to me, he must liken himself to the camp follower, who at a safe distance, looks on while others fight and win the battle, and then, after the danger and hardships are over, steps in and claims a share of the spoils.

Organized labor has before it a mighty and prolonged struggle, but it has also a mighty and enduring hope. The culmination may not be reached in our day, but in the fairer future the struggle will be won, the hope realized, for both are founded upon Eternal Justice, which can neither change nor fail.

NEWARK WON

In a Loosely Played Game With Coshocton on the East End Grounds Monday.

The base ball game on Monday afternoon between the Newark team and a team representing Coshocton, drew a small crowd, but those present saw a game which furnished a variegated assortment of good, bad indifferent base ball, but as the home team won, everybody went away satisfied with the afternoon's sport.

Wade Windsor pitched for Newark, and was hit hard, but he kept the hits so well scattered that with perfect support the visitors would not scored more than three runs. Tish for Coshocton is a splendid young pitcher, and although the score shows that he was hit safely ten times for a total of 13 bases, most of the bingles came after chances had been offered to retire the side. Ashman on first base and F. Tish at short were away off in their work, Ashman making a wild throw in the fifth inning that cost three runs, and his other two errors were also costly. Tish at short fumbled badly and threw wild when he did get the ball. Kelley for Newark, also had an off day at third making three errors on easy chances. Heisey, as usual played a faultless game in the field, while Graeser's work on the inside and outside was equally good, being one of the features. The following is a tabulated score:

NOTES OF LABOR DAY.

The Iron Molders Union had 212 men in line and their fine uniforms, the formation of their line, and other details of their appearance, caused them to be the recipients of many complimentary cheers.

As is usual on Labor Day the glass blowers made a great appearance. There were about 150 of them and nearly as many apprentices similarly uniformed.

W. C. Vogelmeier is an old molder, and always turns out with the local union. He had his carriage in the parade Monday.

The suits worn by the carpenters and joiners were natty and better serviceable. They wore blue shirts, drab felt hats, and light colored woolen trousers.

The Brewery workers and the Consumers Brewery made a creditable showing in the parade.

Many were the expressions complimentary to the Buckeye Band, concerning their fine appearance and the quality of music and the way it was rendered. Every member of the band is a member of Local No. 122, Musicians Protective Association.

Nearly every printer in town marched with the Typographical Union, and they formed an intelligent and good looking group of men.

The journeymen tailors turned out well, and received their share of the laudation showered upon the marchers.

The barbers, 30 in number, with their red and white suits and umbrellas, caught the crowd who greeted them noisily.

"Cookey" Jones, dressed as a mail carrier, headed the Letter Carriers' Union in his carriage. A wagon contained several of Uncle Sam's delivery boys, and the following motto: "Blessed are those who expect nothing for they shall not be disappointed."

The City Police force under Marshal Vogelmeier presented a fine appearance in their full dress uniforms. Park Policeman Johnny Wehrle, looking his gayest, marched with them, as did Truant Officer D. J. Jones.

"Jimmy" Parkinson had command of the Theatrical Stage Employes.

The Electrical Workers, Sheet Metal Workers and Railway Car Men, all turned out in force.

The Painters and Decorators and Masons and Bricklayers struck a poplar chord in their uniforms, and were generously applauded.

The Retail Clerks never appeared to better advantage than in the parade Monday.

The Team Drivers, Plumbers, Dairymen, Expressmen, Hodcarriers, and other crafts were well represented.

W. A. Lovett of the Newark Steam Laundry, and John A. Chilcote and Charles E. Courtier of the Troy Laundry, had their employes in carriages in the parade.

The crowd in Newark Monday was one of the largest ever in the city, but was orderly and well behaved generally. It was a crowd that spent money, and hundreds of dollars were left here by the welcome visitors. There were numerous lunch counters where sandwiches and other light refreshments were served, and by means of these the vast crowds were fed. The regular restaurants and eating houses were taxed to their utmost capacities.

The street car service was the best that it was possible to give under the circumstances that would have taxed a road with much more and better equipment. After the parade a line of cars was started to Idlewilde Park, and they would be filled before they got to the square on the down trip. The placing of these increased facilities on the park line curtailed the service to East Newark, but not to the extent of inconvenience.

All members of the night police force and several extra men were on duty all day Labor Day.

Among the features of the industrial part of the parade the Newark Iron and Steel company made a most creditable showing. The company's wagon of steel castings contained a copper converter that attracted no little interest from spectators of the parade. The company's men in line included 22 molders, 9 furnace men and 48 chippers.

The machinists and blacksmiths were noticeable in the parade, and their showing was most creditable.

BALLOON

Ascension One of the Features of the Afternoon at Idlewilde Park Witnessed by Many.

The balloon ascension at the Park by Prof. D. L. Dennis, took place as advertised about 5 o'clock, and was witnessed by thousands of people. The ascension was one of the prettiest ever made in this vicinity. The large bag of gas ascended gracefully to the height of several hundred feet, when the Professor cut loose with his parachute, and decended gracefully to the earth, amid the cheers of the multitude. The balloon in which the ascension was made was a new one, having just been completed, and this was the first time it was ever inflated. It was made by the Professor and his wife, and required eight days to complete it. The balloon sailed away slowly towards the southeast and remained in the air for over a half hour.

Use Walther's Peptonized Port once and you will use no other medicine. Test it. See advertisements.

Under the blue laws of New England men could be and were put into the stocks for kissing their wives in public on Sundays. It was considered to be "lewd and unseemly behavior."

ELKS' CARNIVAL IS ON

Opening of Week's Big Show Was Auspicious Monday.

The Following Will Tell You Something About the Carnival, But It Must Be Seen To Be Appreciated--- Here All This Week.

The monster Labor Day celebration in Newark drew many strangers to the city, and the interest of our citizens while intent on the grand labor and industrial celebration on Monday, will turn the rest of the week toward the Elks State Reunion and free carnival which opened auspiciously on Monday and will continue the rest of the week.

For many weeks the General Executive committee under the chairmanship of Harry Rossel, has been arranging for one big week of pleasure and enjoyment, and their efforts are to be crowned with success if the opening day is a criterion by which to judge. From the size of every mail received by Attorney Charles W. Miller, secretary of the carnival committee, from every portion of the state, each day will bring its concourse of visitors to attend the reunion and see the carnival.

The carnival of course, is the grand feature of the week, and the Bostock-Ferari company is the entertainment attraction. The company arrived over the Pennsylvania from Toledo at 3 p. m. Sunday in their special train. The stuff was loaded into luggage vans and taken to First street between Main and Locust, which had been set aside for the carnival, and expediously unloaded at the points designated for each attraction. The rest of Sunday afternoon and evening the street was a veritable hive of human industry, and as order gradually developed out of seeming chaos, hundreds looked on, amazed at the progress until the great amusement city took final shape and seemed to rise mushroom like, from the very street pavement. Then the unanimous verdict of those who witnessed the building transformation, was one of approval and satisfied surprise.

The entire management of the Bostock-Ferari attraction in Newark is under the direction of Mr. Victor D. Levitt, who understands every detail of construction, management, and exhibition of every one of the numerous features. Mr. Levitt is also a courteous refined and intelligent gentleman, whom it is a pleasure to meet. Everything vouched for by him is strictly as represented. The company plays here on a basis of percentage, and at the entrance to each attraction a member of the local lodge of Elks, collects the tickets of admission which are sold by a member of the carnival company.

There are shows of every variety, appealing to every taste for enjoyment or amusement. On First street, just south of Main, is the Ferris wheel, which is well patronized. The wheel rises to a height of about sixty feet, and from the top a beautiful bird's-eye view of the carnival street is obtainable.

Across from the Ferris wheel is the mammoth merry-go-round, the largest ever seen in or about Newark. The cars run on a circular track, specially constructed and undulating from about 15 feet above the pavement to about three. This is a source of never-ending pleasure and amusement.

The dog, pony and monkey show is next with the greatest troup of trained animals of this class ever seen in Newark. This show is pleasing and instructive to all, and is an especial delight to the mothers and children.

The exhibition of the larger trained animals, including lions and tigers, is a great center for the crowds, and the patronage it receives is well merited.

One of the valuable lions with this aggregation, died on Sunday night from pneumonia, developing from a cold caught in Toledo. The animal was valued at $2,500, but considering his training was worth much more. The skin was taken off and Manager Levitt will have a rug made of it, while the body was turned over to interested anatomists.

"The Girl From Up There," is one of the cleanest, prettiest attractions on the grounds, and as the week grows older its already large patronage will increase. The singing of illustrated songs and a beautiful serpentine dance with calcium effects, are features.

The Crystal Maze is easy to enter, but the complex arrangement of the great mirrors makes it more difficult of coming out. It is a place that any one who attends the street carnival should not fail to visit.

The Biograph show where may be seen the actual moving photographs of such events as McKinley's funeral, the coronation of King Edward, and the Eruption of Mt. Pelee, is instructive and entertaining. One can almost feel the awe and terror of actual proximity to a volcano in eruption, so realistic is the reproduction.

In the Beautiful Orient the dances and exercises of the natives of these lands in picturesque costumes may be seen and enjoyed.

The streets of Cairo with the camels and donkeys, the acrobatic specialties, and other interesting sights, are always well frequented, and all who go receive a good equivalent for the price of the admission.

The Aztec twins, the two little women who are of such great interest to the scientist and historian, are here to be seen. They are but three feet high and while matured, their intelligence is hardly above that of Esau, the ape man. Everyone should see the Aztec twins who have a vocabulary of 36 English words.

Dodo interests a large audience many times each day, by his blood-curdling feats in a den of poisonous snakes. He winds up his performance by biting the head off a living reptile and eating the quivering flesh.

"Who saw Esau?" is a question that will be asked after carnival week, whenever a mention is made of the carnival. He is beyond a doubt the feature of the entire aggregation, without disparagement of a single attraction. Esau is an African ape, about three years old and standing about two feet and a half high. His intelligence is little short of human. He sits at table, eats like a man (more politely than many), plays a piano, operates a typewriter, and finally holds a reception to the audience, shaking hands with all in a regular Chesterfieldian manner. He undoubtedly understands everything that is said to him, and is now learning to talk. Everyone who has seen Esau is of the same opinion, that he is a most marvelous creature.

"In Fair Japan" is pronounced by all to be one of the very best shows here, and the customs shown by representatives of this interesting country, are highly instructive and historically accurate.

The German Village is one of the most popular resorts for those tired and thirsty from a trip through the carnival street. It is located at the Locust street end, and here may be had a good sandwich, washed down by a refreshing stein of the German beverage. John Finckin acts as head dispenser of the wet goods.

Among other attractions may be mentioned the Elks' Country Store, the Devil's Daughter and many others.

Committee headquarters have been established in the office formerly occupied by Dr. E. A. Galbreath while in Newark.

Parents, do not use vile drugs, or nostrums in your families, but use pure Walther's Peptonized Port.

Garden of South Africa.

Natal is the garden colony of South Africa, with possibilities of the most farreaching kind in every direction, says a correspondent of the London Great Thought. Hardly any really poor people are to be seen. Everybody seems able to go forward and to do well. Of course development is needed. In order to promote that we are seeking to bring in a larger white population. Immigration is the supreme necessity. After living twenty-seven years in Natal I can speak well of it as a most eligible territory for your workingmen to select if they want to emigrate. It is a first rate field for the ordinary artisan. There is not a better in the whole empire, so far as I can judge.

A TALE OF JERICHO.

THE DIRE AFTER EFFECTS OF DEACON BRADLY'S HAIR CUT.

Pap Perkins, Postmaster, Tells the Commotion It Caused In the Community In Which the Deacon Was Honored and Respected.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

DEACON BRADLY was one of the pioneers of Jericho, and he attended more funerals, prayer meetings, weddings and camp meetings than any other three men in the town combined. He had hair that fell down on his shoulders, and he had a meek and humble countenance. It was said that about once a year his wife used the shears to clip the ends of his locks, but that was only rumor. There was no doubt about the deacon's goodness of heart. It had been tested on a hundred occasions and found simon pure. He had been known to put a feather bed in the henhouse on a cold night for use of the fowls and to make a special brand of ice water for his pigs in hot weather. Nobody could remember of his being out of temper or having a word to say against anybody, and the good man was jogging along toward his reward when a calamity happened.

THE BARBER WENT TO WORK.

A wedding and a funeral were the same thing to Deacon Bradly. He expected a glass of cider and a fried cake on either occasion, and he always arose at the proper time and observed that man dieth and fadeth away and that our loss is his gain. Hearing that Farmer Dan Skinner was going to be married to Lucy Randall on a certain day, the deacon drove seven miles to be present. He was made welcome and kindly entertained. In honor of the auspicious occasion peach brandy had been liberally mixed with the hard cider, and Deacon Bradly hung on to a good thing. He was more loquacious than usual, and he tried to tell a funny story, but his legs were fairly steady when he started for home. Half the journey had been completed when the good man met a wandering barber. The barber pleaded misfortune and poverty and offered to cut the deacon's hair for 10 cents, and the offer was accepted. Deacon Bradly sat down under a roadside tree, and the barber went to work. While the deacon hummed the barber clipped, and it was a winning combination. At the end of half an hour there was no longer any Deacon Bradly of Jericho. In his stead there was a fellow with his chin cocked up, a squint to his left eye and a hair cut of such pugilistic excellence that John L. Sullivan would have bowed before it. The long locks had hidden a head as round as a cannon ball, and when the hair had been clipped close the head seemed ready to duck a right hand swing.

"You've got a head on you, you have, old man!" said the barber as he stood back and admired his handiwork, and the deacon almost winked at him as he climbed into his buggy to drive on. He hadn't gone a mile before he met a load of hay. The farmer stuck for the whole of the road and yelled out that he'd have it or die, but when he took notice of that fighting cut he apologized at once and drew clear into the fence. Ten minutes later a hog driver was encountered. He began to rip and cuss about folks frightening his hogs, but as the deacon held up a warning finger his words died away in his throat. He knew a scrapper when he saw one, and he didn't ache for a broken jaw. When the deacon reached home, his wife looked at him for a full minute before she recognized him. Then she clasped her hands over her heart and wailed out:

"Oh, Deacon Bradly, what have you went and done to change you so? You look just like the picture of the Omaha Kid I saw in the paper the other day!"

The deacon explained that it was nothing but a hair cut, but that was a house of mourning and lamentations. Mrs. Bradly sent for Deacon Taylor to come over and see if anything could be done, and the neighbor came, took a look at that bullet head and gently murmured:

"I don't think I will say anything to Brother Bradly about it. He appears to be ready to bit out with both hands if provoked."

The news of the hair cut flew over the town of Jericho in an hour, and the excitement was greater than if a barn had been burned. The effects of the brandy cider had worn off by 7 o'clock in the evening, and the deacon looked at himself in the glass and shed tears, but everybody insisted on misunderstanding him. Deacon Jones, who had known him for forty-five years and never heard of his harming a grasshopper, looked at that head and noted the pose of it and said:

"Deacon Bradly, you are a wolf in sheep's clothing. I never saw but one picture of a prizefight, but you can't deceive me. You are a slugger and have been lying low on us all these years."

A tin peddler was stopping at the hotel over night, and, hearing the post-office crowd talking of the event, he chipped in with:

"I've done a little scrapping myself in my day, and you can't fool me on a pug. You can't judge by the hair cut alone. If you boys will go up and get the deacon outdoors, I'll soon find out whether he can put up his dukes or not."

Three or four of the crowd called at the deacon's and got him out to the gate, and the peddler came along and gave him the "yah."

Every man contended that the good man instinctively squared off for a row, and the peddler backed water and solemnly said:

"Don't any of you boys try any monkey work on that old codger. He's ace high and all there, and if he breaks loose you'll need an addition to your cemetery."

There was some talk of calling a public meeting at the town hall, but the idea was abandoned for fear of exciting the deacon. He didn't want to give up Thursday night prayer meetings, but he had to, and another brother took his place in passing the contribution box on Sundays. That fighting hair cut worked him out of his job, and no matter how much he complained his head was there as an offset. The minister was about the only man who stuck by the deacon. He had never seen a scrapper either in picture or in the flesh, and all heads were alike to him. Even when it was pointed out to him that the deacon had one shoulder hunched up and his chin stuck out he contended that it might be only the natural pose of a good man—one who had helped to send 10,000 Bibles to the heathen in Africa.

Deacon Bradly's hair would have grown out again in time, but the people wouldn't give him time. They continued to misjudge him and keep his heart on the ache, and this brought about the end. One day, six weeks after the malign work of the barber, the deacon was sitting on his veranda and singing a hymn in a sad voice when the town bully of Dobbs Ferry came along and offered to fight him four rounds for the championship. The good man refused with tears running down his cheeks, but the bully began dancing around and shooting out his right and left, and after a minute the deacon sat down and gasped once or twice and was no more. That hair cut and public criticism had broken his heart. M. QUAD.

DRESSY GOWNS.

Velvet Costumes—Flounced Skirts of Lace—White Louisine Dresses.

The weather is so cool that many evening gowns of velvet are being worn. A gown of pale velvet recently seen at a fashionable dressmaker's had its skirt cut plain and raised slightly over each hip to display an underpetticoat of lace over jeweled mousseline de soie. The subdued glitter gave a very rich effect, and this veiling of jeweled stuffs with lace is one of the latest fads.

Flounced skirts of lace are very smart and are combined with Louis Quinze jackets of flowered silk and lace.

The all white taffeta gown has given way to the dress of lustrous louisine made with chiffon and wavy bands of cream silk insertion.

The hat shown in the illustration is of salmon pink crin partially covered with gathered lines of bass and bent into a point in front. A bunch of greenish gray roses shot with the pale pink to catch the tone of the straw is fastened at one side, and there are soft twists of beige tulle and pearl ornaments. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Long coats of every description are much in demand. These are made very simply with cape collars decorated with applique or lines of fagoting. The smartest are kept all black.

clusters of three, and the skirt was treated in a similar manner. The fullness was allowed to flare below the knees, and the lower edge was decorated with an irregular black chiffon applique. There was a wide collar on the waist decorated with chiffon applique and vandyke points.

The smart gown shown is of red veiling over red taffeta, and it is combined with ecru all over lace. The surplice front is edged with a band of white taffeta trimmed with narrow black braid and gilt buttons. The sleeves apparently button over full undersleeves of the lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

"Of course we won't have any regular housecleaning at this time of the year," she said, "but we might as well straighten things up a bit and change the arrangement a little. I can see how the house could be made to look much more attractive. Tomorrow I'll get a charwoman and a man to help me to move the furniture, and— What are you doing, John?"

"I am merely wrapping up my slippers, my dressing gown and one or two other things to take to the office," he replied.

"To take to the office!" she exclaimed.

"Oh, that's all right. I'll bring them back," he explained. "You see, I don't want to have to hunt for them after you have put things to rights."—London Standard.

TRAITS OF JUDGE HOLMES.

Human Side of New Member of the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Holmes, who has just been appointed to the supreme bench of the United States, is noted for his indefatigable labor, says a Boston dispatch to the New York World. Possessed of strong powers for diagnosis and analysis, which were perhaps inherited, he has never let his brain loiter, but has kept it actively engaged in working out, thinking out, things for himself. His studies have been wide and varied, and he is in the broadest sense a scholar. He has not read merely for the sake of reading, but for knowledge and ability that he might make himself useful.

As a magistrate he has shown much learning and profound thinking. His opinions, which run through the last forty volumes of the Massachusetts reports, are expressed in a fine literary style which is peculiarly his own and occasionally sparkle with wit. His opinions are almost always brief, and they are prepared with great celerity.

Judge Holmes is of a pleasant manner and courteous. He is quite tall, with an erect, slender figure, and is very fond of walking as an exercise. It has been his custom for years, when the weather permitted, to walk from his home in the famous house on the Charles river side of Beacon street, Boston, where he lived with his father, to his office in the court building. He is very democratic and genial. In the course of these morning walks to the courtroom he never failed to speak a pleasant greeting to every acquaintance he met on the way. Oftentimes a friend would be passing him without being aware of the fact, but Judge Holmes in his winning way would seize hold of his hand and not allow him to get by until he had spoken a few pleasant words.

The judge has no fads; he is too big a man for fads. He takes an interest in all educational matters, and his tastes are chiefly literary. His acquaintance with the world is wide. He is especially well known in England and Ireland and numbers many of the leading judges and lawyers of both these countries as his friends.

She (coyly)—How old do you really think I am?

He (gallantly)—I haven't the slightest idea, but you certainly don't look as old as you look.—Chicago American.

Consul to Martinique.

John Jewell, who succeeded the late Mr. Prentis as consul to Martinique, is a native of Illinois and had been engaged in the practice of law at Gale-burg. He was educated in Illinois and in the law college of the University of Wisconsin. He traveled extensively before beginning the practice of his profession. Mr. Jewell is but twenty-seven years of age and receives his appointment as a result of his appearance before the board of examining officers of the state department. Mr. Prentis, his predecessor, was one of the victims of Mont Pelee.

A MAN OF GALL

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

John Ford was one of the most remarkable men I ever knew. His interest in other people's business was only equaled by his disinterestedness in his own affairs. His next most prominent trait was persistence. Once let him get an idea of obliging a friend into his head and he would stick like an adhesive plaster.

John Ford was in the burglar alarm business. I had no sooner met him than he proposed to connect me with the nearest engine house and police station. I managed to shake him off, but the next night I stumbled over him lying in the grass on my grounds. He made up a cock and bull story about seeing a light in the bushes and felt it his duty to investigate, ending with, "Let's go into the house and have something to drink and smoke."

I meant to take that man by the neck and heels and throw him over the fence, but I didn't. I went in and drank and smoked with him instead. His monumental gall dazed me and made me subservient.

I was hardly clear of its influence next day when I went to my safe to consult a memorandum. In doing so I moved a bundle of legal papers intrusted to my care by a friend, and all of a sudden my suspicions were aroused against Mr. Ford. Those papers represented a bitter legal fight wherein a large amount of property was involved. Was Mr. Ford's mission to get possession of them? After an hour's reflection I decided that it was. I did not rush off to the police after coming to this conclusion, nor did I hire men to guard the house. I simply took the papers to a safe deposit vault and then bought a beartrap. This trap I set directly in front of the safe, which stood in a recess in the wall, and the chain was padlocked to a leg of it. I had a feeling that Mr. Ford would return. Not only would he return to the grounds, but effect entrance to the house in hopes to get into the safe. Even after seven days and nights had passed that beartrap yawned for him, and I did not weary of well doing.

It was on the eighth night that the man of gall arrived. It was half an hour after midnight when he forced open one of the French windows and entered the library. He knew the lay of things. He steered a straight course for that safe and put his foot into the trap as he was about to sink on his knees before the door. There was one yell and no more, but in response to it James and I dressed and came down. Mr. Ford was present. He was seated on the floor, with the jaws of the trap fast about his left leg, and he was not looking happy.

"Good evening, Mr. Ford," I said as I set the lamp down and took a chair in front of him.

"My dear boy," he replied as he worked up a smile, "if I have disturbed you at this unseemly hour I am sincerely sorry for it."

"Oh, not at all."

"Being a victim of insomnia and being extra wakeful at night, I strolled this way, hoping to find you up and have a little chat with you."

"Exactly. And not finding me up"—

"I took the liberty of entering to get a glass of sherry and one of your cigars. If you think I displayed too much zeal, I can only beg your pardon. I have felt at home here ever since the first day, you know."

"You are certainly welcome," I replied. "Did you find what you wanted?"

"Not exactly."

"James, a glass of wine and a cigar for Mr. Ford, and you may retire. Another glass, Mr. Ford? Then I will smoke with you. So you are troubled with insomnia?"

"I have been for months. I know of nothing to shatter the nerves quicker. That sherry of yours is excellent."

"Yes, it is called fair."

"And these cigars have no superior."

"Thanks."

I knew the man to be suffering agonies, but the only sign he betrayed was the perspiration on his forehead. He leaned on his elbow and puffed away as if in a lounging chair, and for half an hour we conversed on various topics. Then admiration for his nerve and pity for his sufferings got the better of me, and I said:

"I beg pardon, Mr. Ford, but you seem to have a queer attachment to your leg there. Does it make you uncomfortable?"

"Well, slightly so; but don't trouble yourself."

"Indeed, but you must permit me. Let me also throw open the door of the safe and call your attention to the fact that the papers concerning the case of Robbins versus Jones are here no longer. I will call James."

When James came in answer, we pried the jaws of the beartrap open and assisted Mr. Ford to a chair. He occupied it for a quarter of an hour before observing that he felt a bit sleepy and would return to his lodgings.

"I trust your call has been a pleasant one," I said as I assisted him to hobble to the door.

"You have left nothing undone," he replied.

"Drop in again whenever you can. I am always at home to you."

"Thanks. This gout in my foot bothers somewhat, but I think I can make my way. If I don't see you again"—

"But of course you will. You might drop in soon and see about that burglar alarm."

But he never did, and I have not been sorry that I let him go. His gall would have walked him out of prison had I sent him there. M. QUAD.

RODE WHEEL

Into a Cellarway and Received Some Ugly Cuts by a Twelve Foot Fall on Bricks.

Mr. Eugene Ayres a well known resident of Newark, had the misfortune to meet with a very painful accident on Saturday night. He was riding his wheel and had ridden upon the sidewalk in front of the Baker building on West Main street, when he failed to notice the area way leading to the basement and rode directly into it, falling to the brick pavement below, a distance of ten to twelve feet. Dr. C. P. King was called and found that he had sustained two bad cuts, one over the right eye and one over the left eye, besides sustaining a number of painful bruises. The wounds were sewed up and at this writing Mr. Ayres is getting along nicely.

Foot Badly Hurt.

Alva Simpson of Newport, who owns and runs a portable saw mill, while taking it to Newark, where he had secured a contract for some work met with quite a serious accident Saturday. Mr. Simpson was riding on the engine and attempted to get off to attend to some trifling matter around one of the horses, when he fell, and one of the wheels of the engine ran over his right thigh and leg. His shoe was completely torn from his foot, but fortunately for him, no bones were broken, although the fleshy part of the thigh was severely cut.—Zanesville Signal.

VERMONT

HOLDING HER REGULAR STATE ELECTION TODAY

To Choose State Officers, Congressmen and Legislators—Four Candidates for Governor.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 2—Today Vermont is holding its regular biennial election. Ballots are being cast for Governor, Lieut. Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor and State Treasurer, members of both branches of the legislature and members of Congress in the first and second districts. The election is without national significance, but there is a battle on between General J. C. McCullough, of Bennington, the regular Republican nominee for governor, Hon. Percival W. Clement, of Rutland, a bolting Republican, who runs on a high license local option platform, F. W. McGettrick, of St. Albans, the regular Democratic nominee, and Rev. J. O. Sherburne, of St. Johnsbury, the Prohibition candidate. The winner must have a majority over all. There is not much betting on the results, but the few wagers that are made are even money that there will be no choice, and that the legislature will be called upon to make the election.

THE HAHN CASE

Common Pleas Court at Mansfield Hands Down Decision, Holding Hahn to Ohio Charges.

Mansfield, O., Sept. 2—Common Pleas Judge R. M. Campbell, handed down his decision in the William Hahn habeas corpus case, and took up the matter of Governor Nash's warrant to convey Hahn to New York. The opinion required nearly an hour for its delivery.

The judge reviewed the case thoroughly, held that when a certified copy of an indictment is returned, neither the state nor the federal law requires that extraneous matter be considered; that the indictment in New York is regular, and that the accused is not entitled to a discharge on that ground. The court held further that Frederick Nixon, speaker of the New York assembly, had full authority to sign the requisition and that the court cannot go behind the document since full faith and credit must be given the public acts of a sister state.

The judge found that Hahn is not fully restrained of his liberty; that Hahn was under arrest here, before Governor Nash's warrant was served and should therefore answer to the Ohio charge first.

The habeas corpus petition was dismissed and Hahn was remanded to the custody of Sheriff Payne, bond being fixed at $7,000. The judge suspended Governor Nash's order for four months and fixed Hahn's bail in the order at $10,000.

BOTH ARMS

BROKEN IN FALL AT IDLEWILDE PARK MONDAY NIGHT.

Accident Happened at the Switchback, Mr Charles Baker Being the Victim of the Mishap.

An unfortunate accident occurred at the Park about 6 o'clock Monday evening, which had for the time the effect of throwing a damper on the enjoyment of many who witnessed the affair. Mr. Charles Baker, a well known resident of Newark accompanied by his infant daughter, had boarded one of the switchback cars on the switchback railroad, for the purpose of taking a ride, and as the car was returning to the west end of the track, having reached the top of the incline, it started back, before the switch tender could get hold of it. Mr. Baker, thinking that the car was running away attempted to jump out and in doing so struck against Mr. Albaugh the tender, and his little daughter, causing them both to fall off, the little girl falling on top of Mr. Abaugh, and escaping unhurt. Mr. Baker jumped out of the car to save his daughter, and landed with great force on the ground below, breaking both bones in one arm, and one bone in the other. His injuries were promptly attended to, after which he was sent to his home in Franklin's addition.
